L'Agricola

A small farmhouse has given birth to somewhere you could spend all day, every day. A place for a thousand occasions, where tradition and quality reign; a place where young and old can have fun, learn, eat well, and chat with friends, family or colleagues. L'Agricola is not just a farm on the outskirts of Milano – it is a journey through flavour, where our chef provides a modern interpretation of local produce, to eat here or to purchase in our shop so you can eat it in the comfort of your own home.

Ristorante La Pobbia 1850

Where, once upon a time, carriages used to take a break from long journeys, today clients sit at one of Milano's most famous restaurants. Where once poplars grew in long lines in the peaceful heart of the Milanese countryside, now stands "La Pobbia", taking its name from those same trees ("pobbia" means poplar in Milanese dialect).

It serves as proof that here great traditions don't change as time goes by.
